In a letter delivered yesterday and undergoing intensive study by the President's advisers today, Bulganin urged the United States to follow Russia's lead by reducing its own forces, arms and military expenditures. Secretary of State Dulles, speaking for the administration, already has rejected such a course on the ground that it would not be in the United States' interest.

Bulganin also told the President, according to diplomats familiar with his letter, that the Soviet government thinks future negotiations in the United Nations disarmament group could be stripped of their secrecy and conducted in the open.

This was interpreted here by American officials as meaning In Tax Case that the Soviet government has downgraded the U. N. disarmament negotiations and feels they hold little practical prospect for

Gunman Raids Tavern, Kills Three Persons

CHICAGO (A) - A fast-shooting gunman invaded a North Side tavern early today, fatally shot one of the owners and a dice girl and then wantonly killed a 32-year-old newsboy in the street.

Police said they had learned the identity of the gunman from a brother of one of the victims. They described him as an enraged exconvict who had been arrested for creating a disturbance in the tavern a month ago.

The assassin first fired three shotgun blasts at Max Epstein, 45, who was in back of the bar of Mickey and Maxie's Miracle Cabaret at 1114 Argyle St.

Police said that about half a dozen customers were in the tavern when the gunman entered and started blasting at Epstein. They can for cover and Epstein's brother Mickey, 37, rushed to a rear room to get a gun.

The gunman, after shooting Epstein, ran half the length of the bar and fired at the girl, identified as Lois Gates, 28.

The gunman threatened some of the customers as he fled from the tavern. Running into the street, police said, he bumped into a newsboy.

He fired one shot at the man, who was not immediately identified. He died shortly after he was taken to Edgewater Hospital.

Mickey Epstein told police that the slayer was Lawrence N. (Larry) Neumann, 28, whom he had had served prison sentences for armed robbery.

LONDON - (NEA) - A circus is the last place you'd expect to find politics, but the current Soviet reaction against the Stalin cult finds its place in the Moscow State Circus, which just played to capa-city audiences in London.

There are no stars in the Russian circus - by order. There is no top billing, even though the artists are not paid alike, but according to ability. Evidently, Moscow is taking no chances on a Stalinist "cult of personality" developing among the clowns.

But not even Communist Party orders can keep star quality from peeping through the tinsel curtain. And this is what Oleg Popov, the 25-year-old Russian clown, has:

When Rene Coty, the President of France, saw Popov perform recently, he shouted, "Formidable! Fantastique!" Other critics have acclaimed Popov as the funniest Charlie Chaplin tried to scratch his back on a nutmeg grater.

Popov uses none of the grotesque make-up of the traditional clown. although he lets his hair grow long in a Dutch Boy bob. But he is an expert juggler, acrobat, wire-walker and crackpot musician, as well as being a clown.

hat and then the hat again, he has e audience with him.

His training illustrates a basic difference in the Russian approach to the circus. In the West the training ground for the ring is the ring olf, and performers pass on their skills to their children.

In Russia talented youngsters are sent to a State Circus School. where they spend four years in learning every skill before "majoring" in their best subject for a diploma examination. They then join one of 55 circuses to perform mostly for adult audiences.

Popov, for example, was a 15 year-old printer's apprentice on "Pravda" when his talent for mimicry was discovered. After graduating with honors from the State Circus School, he spent four years in perfecting his costume, discarding trunkfuls of costumes before he found the baggy trousers and four cloth caps he now uses.

Nor is he vain. Commenting on gree. and Brussels, he says, "Applause merely makes me more self-crit-

He also shuddered and turned his head when he saw a collie start across four lanes of fast traveling traffic. The dog accomplished what no jaywalking human being could have done. Unbelievably, the animal made it across safely.

After four hours of shopping in one store the untired women returned to the patio rendezvous to greet the worn out male. What a wonderful time they had buying a few handkerchiefs and some reasonably priced dress novelties. But four hours to do it!!

Four women decided to go on a Inquirer that any man who has gone on shopping tour with women will understand the bewilderment of a market research firm which has been studying the buying habits of Philadelphia women. They should make a study in Miami.

The Philadelphia survey indicates that women are inconsistent, mysterious or both. Amen, to that. > We don't know why this should be so puzzling to statisticians.

Any male roped into a shopping tour has known that the female of the species does not follow the male approach to spot what he wants and simply tell the clerk to wrap it up.

If market research experts ever figure out the motivating reflexes of a woman shopper we'd like to hear what they are. If they ever do maybe the experts will change them. But we, too, doubt that. And, as the Inquirer points out, we hope they don't change them because, "women are so much nicer as they are."

Favors Civil Penalties In Voting Rights

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON-The Brownell civil rights bill to protect the voting rights of Negroes in the South came in for some rigorous crossexamination when the Senate Judiciary Committee hauled the Attorney General before it. They almost had to use a block and tackle to get him there.

Brownell has ducked out on testifying before Senate committees almost as much as he has shied away from holding press conferences; so when the solons finally got him before them they gave the perspiring Attorney General a bad time.

First, they wanted to know why he had delayed for months in answering their questtions to him about civil rights. Second, they wanted to know why Brownell's civil rights bill didn't contain criminal penalties for denying the voting rights of Negroes. Instead, Brownell proposes civil action.

"You came out with what you heralded as a new administration civil rights program," reminded Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri. "At the time you did that, there were three bills that had been reported out-four bills indeedby the Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights. "We put some thought into these matters.

We did bring these way back in February. "I wrote you this letter on April 9, following up some of the other letters of 1955."

Brownell Is Silent Hennings then read a long letter to Brownell asking his opinion on the Senate's proposed civil rights legislation. Brownell, however, had no real reply.

"Thank you. Senator." was all he said. "But I do want to know," pressed the senator from Missouri. "And I think I am entitled to know why we were consistently bypassed, why our letters were ignored, why we were given no assistance or help from the department which later unveiled with considerable publicity a new civil rights program. "Now, on April 9. I took the liberty of addressing this letter to you, and I hold a copy of it in my hand."

Hennings then read the letter inviting Brownell to appear before the Judiciary Subcommittee on April 10 at 10:30 a.m.

"We have no record of any reply to that letter," said Hennings. Brownell sat silent. "On these measures, I think it fair to say, and I think you will agree with me, that we had no cooperation," Hennings concluded. Brownell gave no reply.

Hennings then changed the subject. "I understand, Mr. Attorney General," he said. "that you are opposed to any penal provisions relating to any acts which would intimidate, threaten, or force any person to vote contrariwise, or not to vote in a federal Brownell finally answered this one. "We are not opposed to it, Senator," he said. "We think that is a matter of congressional consideration. We would not recommend it affirmatively to

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR. More Explaining Please. The House has voted $12,-000,000 to start work in remodeling the eastern facade of the national Capitol. The total cost is estimated at $42,000,000. Its purpose is to extend the much-used central portion of the building 40 feet to provide more office and restaurant space and to "correct an architectural defect."

This is hard to reconcile with action the same day authorizing $10,000,000 to start a new $64,000,000 House office building and $18,-000.000 for remodeling the two existing structures to enlarge congressmen's office suites and provide a new restaurant and garage.

All of this makes the claim that more Capitol space is needed at least a dubious one and narrows justification for the changes to architectural grounds. But the American Institute of Architects three times and its New York chapter once have gone on record against the project as violating the designs of three distinguished architects approved by two Presidents-Washington and Jefferson.

True. $42,000,000 is a small sum measured by today's billions. But it is big enough to demand that the American people be given a better explanation than has as yet been forthcoming before they are asked to foot the bill. to you at this time. We prefer to stress the

Sen. Hennings: "Your belief is that injunctive relief would be more effective than the possi bility of a penal clause punishing them for such efforts?'

Brownell: "There are, of course, some penal sections in the statute now which could be used. I would use the same analogy that we have in the antitrust bills. There we have both the civil and criminal remedies."

Sen. Hennings: "I am sure that we are all very glad that you are evidencing this interest in this very important field. I wonder if you could tell me. Mr. Attorney General, why you did not see fit to reply to these numerous requests for advice and counsel; why you

Brownell: "That is my recollection also." Hennings: "Then you don't remember exactly why these letters were not answered?" Brownell: "No, I don't, Senator."

Senator Johnston of South Carolina: "You prepared this to handle it like you do in the anti-trust division?"

Brownell: "I was using that as an analogy." Johnston: "Now, have you sent anybody to jail under the antitrust laws?" Brownell: "Yes, sir.

Sen. Johnston: "When?"

Brownell: "I think the first time in a good many years, but we have had at least two cases since I have been there."

Johnston: "Only two cases in which you have given a criminal sentence since you have been Attorney General. So that is the way you want to handle this."

Brownell: "That would be rather misleading to leave the record that way, because there have been dozens of criminal penalties in the form of fines and jail sentences which were suspended, but there we take exactly the same general attitude that we do here, that it is better to use the civil process wherever we can accomplish the goal."

Your Child's Health-

'Growing Pains' Are Usually Temporary, Inconsequential

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D. A mother writes that her 14rear-old daughter complains that her legs hurt her on and off, especially when she has been on her feet a great part of the day. The mother adds that the youngster is ess active than most girls of her age and she cannot explain this difficulty, though she worries about

There are, of course, several possibilities which may explain the pains which this girl complains of, such as flat feet, or improper posture when standing or walking.

The most likely explanation, however, is that this youngster is suffering from the condition which is commonly called "growing pains" and it is this possibility which will be discussed.

There is some difference of medical opinion on the importance of growing pains. Most who have studied youngsters with this com-mon complaint feel that these vague aches are usually unimportant and only occasionally of a serious enough nature to require active medical treatment,

In many children with growing pains the condition seems merely to be caused by growing so fast that the bones and muscles come under some strain.

In such cases, .nd if the abnormalities are mild and one expects them to be corrected by the passage of time, treatment - at least extensive treatment - is hardly

Good food, plenty of sunshine, and adjustment through normal aging is sufficient to take care of the difficulty.

More serious abnormalities may be present. The help of an orthopedic surgeon in deciding whether braces or other special measures are necessary is then worth while.

A few children with growing pains seem to have something wrong with one or more internal glands. When present this also requires correction.

Sometimes the pains appear to be caused by diseased tonsils, adenoids or sinuses, and this is probably distantly related to the muscular rheumatism which older peo-There is also a debate among medical men as to whether growing pains may be a mild form of rheumatic fever. Usually rheumatic fever comes on suddenly with swollen and painful joints and other characteristic symptoms. Rheumatic fever can and often does injure the heart. Since an occasional child with growing pains develops heart trouole without any other signs of rheumatic fever, the possibility of a connection has to be considered. Some authorities feel that growing pains can be a mild form of rheumatic fever, and others disagree. As a rule, children who have severe growing pains which do not disappear rapidly should be examined by a physician if one wishes to be sure that a serious condition is not present. Because the majority of such pains, however, are mild and temporary, one need not worry unduly.

Stassen Stature Grows; Dulles Influence Fading

By Joseph A. Dear Democrat-Capital Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON - Ike has apparently completed an agonizing reappraisal of John Foster Dulles.

According to insiders who should know, the President is leaning more on Harold Stassen, the "Secretary of Peace." and less on Dulles, the Secretary of State. Ike once said Dulles was the greatest Secretary of State ever, but his influence at the White House seems to be slipping.

ed at secret sessions of the National Security Council. He gets a respectful hearing there. One reason he does is because observers for political survival in Wisconsin have noted that more often than confronts Ike with a tough problem. not his viewpoint coincides with that of President Eisenhower.

It's also obvious that Ike is backing Stassen's play in the disarmament game. Stassen is treating the Russian military manpower cutback seriously. Dulles dismisses it

The accepted explanation for Dulles' fall from grace is the Middle East mess. He misled Ike by underestimating the Russian potential for unsettling maneuvers in the area. So at Geneva Ike said nothing about the impending delivery of Czech arms to Egypt, though a protest then might have stopped the shipment and prevented the ensuing build-up of tensions.

Senator Alexander Wiley's battle

Wiley, the fun-loving back slapper who clutched at the Vandenberg mantle, is ranking Republican on the important Foreign Relations Committee. He has gone down the line for Ike: for foreign aid, against the Bricker amendment, against the farm bill, and so on.

His support of Eisenhower's foreign policy has cost him the endorsement of his own party in Wisconsin, which still is tinged by isolationist sentiment. The state organization has instead endorsed Congressman Glenn Davis, who is with Ike on domestic issues only.

Naturally, the Wiley camp wants the President to speak out for the Senator. And that's the nub of the problem. Should the President speak up for a loyal supporter? Or should he keep clear of the

NEW YORK (P)-While the 1956 national political conventions may not be the greatest shows on earth, they're going to be the most thor-oughly covered shows on earth by television and radio.

All the networks are loaded with all sorts of engineering plans. Now comes NBC with a small gadget that could make a big stir. Convention candidates be warned. Purify your thoughts and watch your language or the Transceiver will get you.

The Transceiver is a pocketsized two-way radio, much smaller than the "walkie-talkie" and "beer mug" models used in previous convention coverage. The tiny two-way unit, about the size of a woman's formal handbag, will be used by NBC reporters on the convention floor.

If the Transceiver doesn't catch you, then the new one-man portable television cameras may.

Special Letter Fails To Swerve Representatives

WASHINGTON, June 7—49—The House dealt a major jolt to Presient Eisenhower today by approving a big slash in his $4,900,000,000 foreign aid bill despite his plea that the cut would "seriously impair" free world security. With large numbers of his own party revolting against his leadership on this issue, the chamber voted 192-112 against a motion to restore 600 million dollars of the $1,109,000,000 a House committee had cut from the bill.

Thus the House indirectly ratified the big cut, despite an eleventh-hour letter Eisenhower sent to the chamber today, asking for more money "to maintain the pace of our battle to win a lasting peace throughout the world."

The crucial vote was taken without a rollcall, with members passing up an aisle to be counted by tellers. Thus there is no record of the vote, but newsmen, watching from the galleries figured that a majority of Republicans voted against the President, and the bulk of his support came from Demo-

Some supporters of the cut said there would still be ample foreign aid funds; others expressed skepticism that Foreign aid has been of any value in halting communism. One, Rep. George S. Long (D-La), called the aid program "the greatest fraud since money became a medium of exchange.
